

What did your internship entail?

AM: I worked on a project called the MCDB survey creation application. The aim of this project was to construct an application for creating surveys, which could, in turn, be used to gather customer information.

What did you gain from the internship?

AM: Technically, I strengthened my Java and JSP skills. I also got a taste of how a real time company works.

How do you feel the internship prepared you for your future career in computer science?

AM: The fact that I was able to work in a company as big and as reputable as Polaroid has instilled great confidence in me. Also, now I know what companies expect out of their new employees which would benefit me the next time I search for jobs.

What was the best part of the internship?

AM: I was never considered as an intern but as a full time employee and I was involved in many team meetings and project discussions(other than my project).

Anything else you'd like to say about the experience?

AM: Since this internship was a part of the John T Petters Internship Program, care was taken that all interns had a good experience. We were taken to Boston harbor cruise, Boston sight seeing tour, a baseball game at Fenway Park and were also taken to many lunches and dinners. Apart from this we were given workshops on how to give efficient interviews and how to make good resumes.
